exam of lip lesion showed pyogenic granuloma. Cranial CT scan showed with hyporeflexia, photophobia, hypogonadism and abdominal distention of the limbs (Figures 1 and 2). Clinical examination showed significant retardation in movement of the whole body, slowing of speech expression (Figure 3). A biopsy of a lesion was performed and the histopathological examination showed a nodule residing in vascular channels solid blocks or form cells forming smooth muscle surrounding the vascular wall (Actin, 40x).

DeSanctis-Cacchione syndrome.

Hypogonadism

Conflict of interest: None

Financial funding: None

REFERENCES

The metastases may appear as a first manifestation of a visceral cancer, such as gastric adenocarcinoma, in patients already diagnosed with this condition. The disease can manifest as single or multiple lesions, which can be asymptomatic or present with pain, redness, and swelling. Bleeding can occur. Bleeding can be severe at the accelerated phase when thrombocytopenia and coagulopathy are present.

Do you know this syndrome?