

AUTHORS' REPLY

Reply to: Congenital nystagmus, disability, visual impairment, and noncompaction suggest hereditary disease

Resposta para: Nistagmo congênito, deficiência, disfunção visual e não compactação sugerem doença hereditária

Ednei Costa Maia<sup>1</sup>, Filippo Aragão Savioli<sup>1</sup>, Sanna Roque Pinheiro<sup>1</sup>, Leandro Santini Echenique<sup>1,2</sup>, Japy Angelini Oliveira Filho<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidade Federal de São Paulo, São Paulo, SP, Brazil.

<sup>2</sup> Hospital Israelita Albert Einstein, São Paulo, SP, Brazil.

DOI: 10.31744/einstein_journal/2019CE5401

Thank you for interest in our paper.

The manuscript was written to discuss the question about sports eligibility in Paralympic athletes. Our case did not show familiar antecedents of cardiac disease. During the study, we could not have access to patient's family history to verify her family incidence of cardiopathy.

AUTHORS' INFORMATION

Maia EC: <http://orcid.org/0000-0001-9255-3478>

Savioli FA: <http://orcid.org/0000-0002-8871-4512>

Pinheiro SR: <http://orcid.org/0000-0003-4874-313X>

Echenique LS: <http://orcid.org/0000-0001-5182-2192>

Oliveira Filho JA: <http://orcid.org/0000-0002-5591-0285>

How to cite this article:

Maia EC, Savioli FA, Pinheiro SR, Echenique LS, Oliveira Filho JA. Reply to: Congenital nystagmus, disability, visual impairment, and noncompaction suggest hereditary disease [letter]. einstein (São Paulo). 2019;17(4):eCE5401. http://dx.doi.org/10.31744/einstein\_journal/2019CE5401

Copyright 2019

This content is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License.