Erratum: Team adherence to rapid prenatal testing and administration of benzathine penicillin in primary healthcare

In the article “Team adherence to rapid prenatal testing and administration of benzathine penicillin in primary healthcare”, DOI: https://doi.org/10.1590/S1980-220X2019006203645, published by the journal “Revista da Escola de Enfermagem da USP”, Volume 54 of 2020, elocation e03645, on page 4, Figure 2, item “HIV, Syphilis and Hep. C”:

Where was written:
Erratum: Team adherence to rapid prenatal testing and administration of benzathine penicillin in primary healthcare

Now read:

The rapid test in the prenatal context

- Are the tests performed at the beginning of prenatal care?
  - Yes: 91 (97.8%)
  - No: 2 (2.2%)

- Are the tests performed at the beginning of the third gestational trimester?
  - Yes: 48 (51.6%)
  - No: 45 (48.4%)

- Are the tests provided for the sexual partners of the pregnant woman in the prenatal care?
  - Yes: 53 (57%)
  - No: 40 (43%)

- Do the partners attend?
  - A majority: 26 (49.1%)
  - A minority: 5 (9.4%)
  - None: 22 (41.5%)

N = 93